10 NEW INDICTMENTS IN JULIAN OIL PROBE

'ROUND 'N' 'ROUND

Did you ever take the rear end of your care apjart just o see what makes the wheels go around? If you haven't take a word from one who knows and DON'T.

Which all reminds us of the time when we drove around our fair city in a popuar make car. And there was a friend who had a car of the same model. He decided that the rear end needed an ove hauling.

We had a glorious time, wading in grease up to our elbows. Then we had to take the rear end of our car apart so we could find out how to put the rear end of our friend's car together.

Life's like that.

What this country needs more than a five cent cigar is a screen grid radio tune that won't burn out.

Human beings are funny animals. We read a dispatch from Chicago, telling about Mrs. Ruth Hannah McCormick and her political fight. She filled a good sized auditorium and outlined her platform. It took five minutes for the cheers to pass a given point.

When she got through, in comes one of her opponents, who tells the crowd to stick around. So he outlines his program, which was just opposite to Mrs. McCormick's. And they cheered HIM just as loud.

This all goes to prove that in politics it isn't the cheers that counts—it's the votes.

Last night's best crack was made when a friend drops into the office and asks us if we'd heard the latest Scotch joke. Some one pipes up and says, no, he'd just got in from dinner. Figure it out.

Ever notice your friends when they read the so-called funny papers? And have you ever seen any face so glum and sad? Once in a great while they chuckle.

There isn't any justice!! It's bad enough for the Richmond police officers to tag your car for parking it on the streets all night without having the saidofficer toot his horn after he has done the tagging and wakeup the whole family.

In other words, this is just a word of warning to a certain Richmond policeman who drives a new Erskine sedan (advt.) and worked the midnight to eight o'clock shift last month.

April Fool's day means nothing to yours truly—it's April's fool day 365 days of the year for him.

GREEN LAUDS U.S. WORK PLAN

WASHINGTON, April 1.—UP—The unemployed, estimated at 3,700,000 must be taken care of "or we will have a revolution on our hands," President William Green of the American Federation of Labor warned today.

He appeared before the Senate commerce committee and approved Senator Wagner's program for alievation of unemployment by a system of statistics, a government agency for workers, and a long-range public works program to provide employment when industrial wheels slow down.

Unemployment, Green said, has taken from the workers and the country $1,000,000,000 in wealth in the first three months of the yeas. He said there were 3,700,000 out of work in February, the largest number in three years, with a loss of $400,000,000 in wages for one month.

That one billion, he said, if added to the wages of workers would have turned the business tide from a recession to an advance.

Earners Lauded

Loss of employment has an immediate result on retails trade. Green said, asserting that trade and industry depend directly on wage earners for their customers.

"Intelligent managements," he said, "have amortization funds to provide against scrapping of machinery but few have anything to tide over the workers who have been putting their physical and mental ability into operating the old machines."

"Labor is fully persuaded unemployment can be eliminated as social and economic problems," he said. "We have organizations necessary to contribute to its solution and ready to cooperate in working out constructive methods."

Must Choose

"The employers," he said, "will have to choose between systematic planning of employment and government doles."

Green said the talking pictures alone have thrown 20,000 musicians out of work. Some have gone into other lines.

He'en Hall of the National Federation of settlements, painted a dire picture of poverty and want in the lower classes of workers. Unemployment is causing mental breakdown cases which are filling the insane asylums and adding to the suicide rates, she said.

CORONER'S JURY ACCUSES GIRL SLAYER

CHARGES OF MURDER FILED

EUREKA, April 1.—UP—A coroner's jury returned a verdict here tonight that Mary McCoy "came to her death Feb. 20, 1930 as a result of gunshot wounds received while in the company of Clarence King," and recommended that King be held for investigation.

In eight days a murder mystery had been climaxed by the jury's decision.

Testimony before the jurors started with details of finding the body a week ago yesterday. Then Deputy Sheriff Jack Wunderlick told how he put skin off the young woman's fingers in a solution and sent it to Sacramento where finger print experts determined the woman was Mary McCoy.

King Mum

Another deputy related arrest of King by Portland officers, the next day and testimony was concluded by Dr. Carl E. Wallace, coonty physician who detesmined almost exactly how long Miss. McCoy had been dead.

King was present but rfused to testify.

Formal charges of first degree murder were filed against King late today, containing the allegation that he was responsible for the death of Mary "Mickie" McCoy.

No Attorney

Mrs. McCoy was killed about six weeks ago and her body was hidden behind a log in a redwood forest 50 miles north of here. King was arrested in Portland when he called at the postoffice for a letter addressed to Mrs. McCoy.

The charges were placed against him at a bail hearing held before Justice of the Peace Frank E. Niskey. He was ordered held without bail.

King indicated he will accept appointment of a defense attorney by the court as he has no counsel funds.

GUARD NEGRO IN LYNCH THREAT

TROY, Ala., April 1.—UP—The Troy company of the Alabama national guard was ordered out tonight on appeal of Sheriff R. A. Galloway, of Pike county to prevent threatened lynching of Robert Giles, negro, held on a charge of attacking a white woman.

Feeling ran high here earlier tonight after the alleged attack, and the sheriff admitted the situation appeared threatening, with scores of angry citizens walking the streets.

Giles was under guard at the county jail here and was to be transferred to another jail later. He had not been questioned, the sheriff said, and had made no statement of any kind.

At 10:30 p. m. Sheriff Galloway characterized the situation as "quieter."

Ganascia Held To Answer

Frank Ganascia was bound over to the superior court by Police Judge C. A. Odell yesterday when Ganascia appeared for preliminary hearing on a charge of violating the state law forbidding aliens to carry weapons.

Ganascia was arrested by Patrolman E. M. Logan Saturday night on Garrard boulevard.

Unidentified Man Found In Bay

EUREKA, April 1.—UP— The body of a man, weighed with railroad irons, was found in Humboldt bay today. Fingerprints and marks of the clothing hardly distinguishable, were the only clues upon which the officers could make identification.

Elbow Exercise

F. I. TOMLINS, Colgate student drinking a "Colgate Cocktail" before taking part in the fatigue experiments being conducted by Dr. Donald A. Laird, director of the Psychological laboratories. The cocktail is made of sugar in water, flavored with lemons. Sugar is said to be one of the greatest energizers.

8 APPEAR IN GRAFT COURT

OAKLAND, April 1.—UP— There was no "April fooling" about the East Bay graft and paving scandal today, when eight men, indicted for alleged subornation of perjury, surrendered at the county jail.

The men were taken within, fingerprinted, and otherwise given to know the seriousness of the charges against them, before they were released on bail.

All were to re-appear for arraignment before Superior Judge Fred V. Wood, on Thursday, District Attorney Earl Warren said.

The men were: Dwight and Hardy Hutchinson, John Heafey, Milton Moore, Charles Bates, Archibald Borland, John Bowersmith and Phillip Johns, all officials of paving firms.

They were indicted following testimony of A. A. Thiel, office manager for Hutchinson and company, who thereby were made eligible for bondsmen, and thereby saving themselves the expense of paying for surety bonds. The transfers were nominal only, it was charged.

Rail Hearing Nears Ending

SAN FRANCISCO, April 1.—(U.P.)—Promising a new growth in the industries of the San Francisco and Eastbay districts which would be served by the Western Pacific should that line be permitted to construct a spur from San Francisco to Niles via a new bay bridge, Harry Adams, president of the Western Pacific today opened the testimony at the hearing on the petition before the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The link which is the subject of the petition, would assume considerable importance if the Western Pacific is allowed to join with the Great Northern and enter California from Klamath and Keddie, a proposal now being considered a Washington.

H. C. Davis, examiner for the commission before whom the hearings are being held at Hotel St. Francis, intimated that he expected to finish hearing the evidence by Thursday. The South-ern Pacific isopposing the petitionat for the spur track.

PLANE ON LONG SEA HOP DOWN

HAMILTON, Bermuda, April 1.—UP—Word received from New York that the monoplane "Pilot Radio" had alighted on the sea 60 miles north of here was the onlyinformation received here tonight regarding the plane which left Long Island Sound for Bermuda at 9:37 a. m.

Inability to communicate with Capt. Lewis A. Yancey, and his two flying companions left Bermuda unable to render assistance if any were needed.

Lacking definite knowledge of Yancey's exact position and understanding him to be in no danger, ships stood by awaiting orders instead of putting out to sea. Boats in the harbor and government ships in the dockyards kept search lights playing in the event that Yancey had taken off again and proceeded in this direction.

The belief here was, that he found he could not reach Bermuda before darkness and that, finding the sea calm, had landed with the intention of completing his 784 mile trip tomorrow morning.

Berkeley Police Chief Back Home

BERKELEY, April 1.—UP—After six months spent in Chicago as a professor of criminology at the university there, Chief of Police August Volimer, far famed as a "scientific" police chief and theorist, returned home today.

Vollmer stated that he might experiment in Berkeley with a new "formula" which would give more efficient policing with a minimum otlay by the city, through a scientific study of the districts of the city and a distribtion of officers to points where they would be more valuable, with a diminishment of the number of officers kept in peaceful sectors.

Child Abandoner Found On Streets

PORTLAND, Ore., April 1.—UP—A young mother, who tossed her baby on the front steps of the Y. W. C. A. and disappeared was found wandering about the streets of Portland today. She was indentified as Mrs. Anna DeVries, 23, of Kelso, Wash. She was said to have been recently released from the hospital at Medical Lake, Wash. The baby was uninjured.

NEW DEPTH REACHED IN OIL QUIZ

LOS ANGELES, April 1.—(U.P.)—The county grand jury investigation of the three-year-old crash of the Julian Petroleum corporation was believed to have reached a new depth tonight with the voting of a secret indictment reported to charge ten men with conspiracy to violate the corporate securities act.

The names of seven were given out tonight by Capt. J. C. Fox, of the sheriff's fugitive detail. They were:

S. C. Lewis, former president of the Julian company; Jacob Berman, Julian executive; Motley Flint, banker; Ed Rosenburg, financier; Henry S. McKay Jr., attorney, and R. M. and Charles G. Reese, of A. C. Wagy and company bond house.

Jury Recesses

After returning the indictments before Judge Wood, the grand jury recessed until Monday. The court ordered bench warrants for the accused men issued at once.

No one ever has been convicted for the 4,000,000 share stock overissue which caused the failure of the Julian company. S. C. Lewis, Jacob and Lewis Berman, and others were acquitted. They were indicted two weeks ago on charges of conspiring to bribe jurors in that trial.

38 Arraigned

Thirty-eight men, many of them very wealthy, were arraigned before Judge Wood late in the day on the usury conspiracy indictments. They are accused of having charged a usurious rate of interest for loans made to the Julian corporation in its last months.

Among those indicted were Louis B. Mayer, film magnate, Joe Toplitzky, wealthy real estate man, and Motley Flint, who was reported returning here from Europe. Judge Wood set April 8 as date of pleas. However, no copies of the grand jury indictments have been released.

Berman Testifies

Testimony by Jacob Berman, former Julian financial wizard, was believed to have caused the usury and the corporate securities indictments. He probably will receive immunity in the bribery case.

S. C. Lewis, Julian president, scored heavily to his attempt to avoid state prosecution, when Federal Judge William James ruled today that he must leave for the federal penitentiary at McNeil's Island next week. Lewis, who had had been at liberty under bond, surrendered yesterday so he could not go to trial in the bribery, and possibly other cases. He is under sentence of from one to seven years for mail fraud in connection with the promotion of the Lewis Oil company. However, District Attorney Buron Fitts said he would attempt to have Lewis' trial advanced to April 4 from April 21.

PUPILS AID IN CENSUS

Even the youth of Richmond has been enlisted in the campaign to provide a complete census for this city.

Mayor A. L. Paulsen, took a number of the sample census blanks to the high school yesterday. Bert X. Tucker, prncpal of the high school, then instructed teachers who in turn gave the pupils of the school information on the data required for the census.

Through the aid of the children, census enumerators hope to have parents well informed on the information which is required on the blanks.

It was also pointed out that foreign born parents who might not fully understand the working of the census might be aided by their children attending the high school in preparing the data required by the census enumerator.

What Price Romance?

SPRING, the dear old calendar declares, is once more in the air—
And nobody has to tell women that spring is in their hearts.
It's one of the things they know without telling—
And some of them are not too happy in the knowledge.
For what spring means to a woman, of course, is loving and being loved.

And every loveless spring through which a woman lives
Is likely to set her to wondering what it's all about—
And whether—and if—and when—and why not—and
What price romance?
These are questions which many a successful young business woman asks herself.
At this time of year, especially—
And sometimes she asks them out loud.
As does an intelligent correspondent, Phyllis Snyder, in the following letter:

"Your splendid article, 'Half-Loaves and Hope,' aroused my special attention," she writes,
"Inasmuch as I, too, happen to be just thirty-two years old,
"And know quite a few young women in the financial district, of my age or older,
"All of us being of the 'above the average' type, both intellectually and in earning capacity.

"We find ourselves asking the same old question,
"Which, however trite it may sound, is nevertheless vitally important:
"What about romance?
"Where has it gone?
"What's become of it?
"Is there really nothing in life but work, work, WORK?' Et cetera, ad infinitum.
"Taking my own case as a fairly good example:
"The novelty of being the head of a household (I'm taking care of a widowed mother)
"Has really worn off.
"Yes, one can have a snug little home, in a two-room or three-room apartment.
"But it really isn't a home, in the true sense of the word.
"It's merely a place where we sleep off a good deal of disgruntledness.
"A place that consumes the greater part of our hard-earned wages.
"A place that we sit in and MOPE.
"We nowadays meet only two kinds of men.
"Once upon a time, I've been told, there were many kinds.
"Now, there is the kind who's very eagerly looking for a bunk to park in.
"No matter who the girl may be—looks, age, disposition—
"So long as she's got a well-paying job.
"That's the paramount consideration.
"Then there's the other kind who, in seeking for a wife,
"Looks for the 'sweet young thing.'
"Who may be minus every atom of brain matter.
"But the only thing that counts with him is the fact that she has 'IT.'
"Or 'Wax Appeal,' as I call it.
"Those of us who have jobs permitting us to travel when and where we desire
"Are not so badly off.
"But most of us can't even do that.
"As for acquiring a dog,
"While I love animals, I could never get a thrill out of a mutt!
"After reading your article to my mother last night,
"She suggested that we adopt some little youngster.
"A splendid thought, but not the ideal thing for any single woman
"With nothing out a job to take care of her when she grows older.
"So you see, to those of us who find ourselves unwillingly romantic,
"Life is not such a hot proposition.
"Now that we women have our FREEDOM (?)—
"To my mind, we've acquired a good many more shackles—
"We should be satisfied, I suppose—
"But how do you get that way?
"I've been looking for a solution to this problem for some years, and must admit failure.
"There's another thought: Once upon a time
"When a girl married, for better or for worse,
"She knew that her job was to keep the home running;
"In these days of 'enlightened' (?) women, she not only undertakes
"To care for the house, the babies and all the rest of the accompanying music.
"But she also has the financial responsibilities about which to worry her head.
"And, as a topper, she must meekly take in all Friend Husband's advice on how to run things.
"While he struts about, Master of Ceremonies.
"And this is not the exception, but rather the rule.
"To sum up, I can't see the 'rosiness' of the picture—
"And I'm not merely the spectator,
"But one of the important actors in a stellar role.'
Our first, too flippant reaction to the above complaint
Was that if its author really thinks all young men of to-day
Are sponges, or pompous strutters, or both—
She ought to be glad, instead of sorry, that she is a bachelor girl and not a wife!
But serious and sympathetic second thought says that such apparent cynicism
Is usually camouflage for suppressed and unsatisfied romanticism—
And what, as our correspondent asks, is to be done about that?
Honestly, the suggestion we'd like to make is—stop suppressing it!
Don't be so swift and sure in labeling and condemning "the only two kinds of men'—
Naturally, a young business woman, "above the average intellectually and in earning capacity."
Cannot pull the old-fashioned girl's 'I think you're marvelous' line, on every man of her acquaintance—
The business woman couldn't keep her face straight, saying that!
But neither need she go around with a sex chip on her shoulder.
Instead of being aggressive toward men, she can be friendly and feminine—
She can even ask them to dinner in her apartment, and cook the dinner—
A writer in The Independent Woman, the business woman's own magazine, advises this manoeuvre—
Since you can catch more flies (and men) with honey (and home cooking) than with vinegar!
Make friends, be friends, with the other sex as well as your own—
Romance may be waiting 'round the corner—
And, anyhow, you'll get fun, as well as work, out of life, as you go along!

Andre Maurois's Life of Byron

SO MANY biographies of Byron have been unloaded on a satiated public that another one might be found inexcusable, were it not for the fact that its sponsor is the delightfully adroit and humorous Andre Maurois. So artfully has this eminent biographer told his story of George Gordon, Lord Byron, that one's interest never flags from the alpha to the omega of his romantic Don Juan's life, although its telling stretches over some 550 pages.

Maurois treats his subject psychologically—and where might he find a better one? Lord Byron's ancestors made him. Early influences governed his life.

"The book is essentially the study of the evolution of a young Puritan who was born chivalrous, affectionate and even heroic, and was transformed into a cynic by the first men and women he encountered in life," M Maurois explains his biographical point of view. "I want to show that the boy, the first Byron, always remained in him, that he was at heart sentimental, and that his death in Greece can only be explained through his desire to become the first Byron again."

Of course this will be hard to explain to the many who consider Byron a bounder and who scorn his poetry. But it is a daring author who strips this Don Juan of his cynicism and vests him with sentimental clothing. It is a fearless author who condones Lord Byron for his liaison with his half-sister, Augusta, on the theory of the evolution of a Puritan. But for the man or woman who is attracted to-day, as men and women in the nineteenth century were drawn to this handsome, dissipated and fascinating Byron, there is a lure in this interpretation by this French biographer.

For new material Maurois is indebted to the copy of Byron's life which belonged to J. C. Hobhouse and which was marginally annotated by him. These notes provide several new anecdotes, which fit in with the author's moral viewpoint.

Born Under a Dark Star

Byron was born under a dark star. There were dark legends concerning the Byrons. The fifth Lord Byron was tried by his peers for murder and the younger, a sailor, became the most luckless Admiral of the realm. George Gordon's mother didn't pass down to her son any admirable traits. She has been interpreted as a woman of violent temper.

"The child observed his parents with earnest curosity. Other little boys had fathers and mothers who lived together and loved each other. But his mind was awakening to life amid a hubbub of quarrels, reproaches and complaints. He could see that the servants regarded his parents as creatures mad, dangerous and on occasion comical. He was marked off from other boys by his family, but still more so by his infirmity."

The quotation breathes the author's psychological treatment. Byron, as is perhaps well known, was born with an apparently paralyzed condition of the tendons of the ankle which made it impossible for him to stand erect unless he stood on his toes.

And so one goes on through the book with this moral idea in mind. One spends early days with him in Aberdeen, watching his character develop, puzzling with him over the problem of Cain. "Why had God allowed Cain to slay his brother? Why did God sometimes allow George Byron his desire for cruelty and impiety?" One reaches with him the tenth birthday that brought with it the news that George Gordon Byron was the sixth Baron of Newstead. One goes with him through the period of his deep love affair with Mary Chaworth, with whom the author places the great responsibility of Byron's moral decline. One reads with enjoyment his correspondence with his half-sister, Augusta, again noting that the author is stressing the development of cynicism in his Byron.

"But really, after all (pardon me, dear sister)," he writes at one time. "I feel a little inclined to laugh at you, for love, in my humble opinion, is utter nonsense, a mere jargon of compliments, romance and deceit; now, for my part, had I fifty mistresses, I should in the course of a fortnight forget them all, and if by any chance I ever recollected one, should laugh at it as a dream and bless my stars for delivering me from the hands of the little mischievous Blind God."

We go with him to Trinity College. We meet Hobhouse. We go with Childe Harold on his first pilgrimage. We meet his Lady Caroline Lamb and smile over this cicisbeo that Maurois has pictured. We read of his loneliness at the age of twenty-six. We pass through his liaison period. We watch him marry and

"Enough for me that you are my wife to me to hate you—now. When I first offered myself you had it all in your power. Now you will find that you have married a devil."

But his Pippin, after giving birth to a daughter, went back to her parents, and the cynical Byron passed on through his amorous affairs with Lady Oxford, Lady Frances Webster, Clare Clairmont, Marianna Segati and the Countess Guiccioli.

In Italy, with the Countess Guiccioli, one meets a different Byron. One finds him in association with Shelley. His philosophy of life has greatly altered since his exile from England. He lets it out in "Don Juan."

And then came the Byron who wanted action, the Byron who died in the swamps of Greece, the Byron who won for himself a place in the fickle heart of that England which had cast him off, but which proclaimed him a hero dying for the freedom of Greece. That was the Byron who led the young Alfred Tennyson to carve on a yew tree in his father's garden the words: "Byron is dead."

The Epilogue

Of particular interest, from the psychological standpoint, is Maurois's Epilogue, in which he traces the histories of people connected with Byron's life, after the death of the poet. To Augusta was left his huge fortune, a half million dollars in our money, which in two years she had scattered to pay off creditors and blackmailers. "In all her troubles she was helped by Lady Byron, who was almost incredibly indulgent to her," writes Byron's biographer.

Medora's sad life is briefly traced. Medora was the daughter of Byron and of Augusta Leigh, his half-sister. In her, history repeats itself. She eloped with the husband of her half-sister and in her distress afterwards she had to be helped by Lady Byron. "It is curious, and not without pathos, to observe how Medora's life followed the same curve as Byron's, a period of passion and defiance being followed by a period of redemption."

We pass on to readers this review with the same hope offered by the author that this book may be fortunate enough to send back to Byron's works some readers who pass stern judgment on his verses and his life. Maurois is a sympathetic interpreter.

"Byron," by Andre Maurois, translated from the French by Hamish Miles, is published by D. Appleton & Co.

In "To the Best of My Memory" Albert Payson Terhune radiates happiness. The caption, "The Story of a Happy Life," is fitting. Readers of his dog stories, we know, will want to read this story of his life. (Harper & Brothers.)

The World's Window

By Pierre Van Paassen

PARIS, March.

Morand's "New York"

Paul Morand's book, "New York," continues its sensational sale in Paris and although the author declares that it is not destined to be read by Americans, the enthusiasm of the author for his subject is of the kind to communicate itself to the spirit of his readers Americans or not. He has discovered a new esthetic, of blue steel and geometric nickel. Since luxury from all over the world finds a haven of welcome in New York, M. Morand is of the opinion that thought and science will follow suit and leave Europe. On this point the French critics are bound to give him an awful battle. In spite of his precautions, M. Morand tires his reader out by a desire to make him see all night clubs, banks and cemeteries. Of course, it's the subject matter of the book that brings this with it. The reader begins to feel the tiredness of New York. "If you see a very fresh and rosy face in that city," he says, "it is a face painted up and decorated by the embalmer." What would otherwise be a dry guide book becomes alive with remarks of that sort. Here and there one finds also a baten of those nervously written pages which give one a taste of the great city's fever. It is the most complete book that exists on New York at present, not excepting the works of Theodore Dreiser, and John dos Passos which treat only of certain phases of New York life. Morand's is a treatise on human geography. Everything passes in review: business, Prohibition, the lower east side, Broadway, Wall Street, Sing Sing. He retraces even the history of New York, but only to show his readers that everything in that city has its face toward the future, and constitutes a living image of what the cities of to-morrow will be like.

Spring On The Way

New Yorkers and Parisians don't know it yet, but farmers and those living outside the great stone and cement human hives are telling one another like some precious secret that spring is on the way. We discovered four little violets in the meadow the other day and carried them triumphantly home, where they repose in a small liqueur glass, as no vase could be found small enough to lodge them. Other violets are on the way. Timidly they come looking above the bare ground, and, surprised with the sweetness of the atmosphere, decide to stay. The abnormally soft winter has deceived Nature a little this year. In spite of the March tempests and high winds the buds are swelling on the trees. Another few weeks of warmth and sunshine and we will see the first roses and lilacs. The first manifestations of spring, discreet and hesitant though they may be, contain a promise; promise of a renovation of the land now still gray and sombre. It is a promise also that somewhere we are not forgotten. If the falling leaves in autumn are like letters containing a message from Death, the first pale green sprouts of grass that appear in the meadows now that spring is on the way bring back hope of life. For mysterious forces are stirring beneath that brown soil. And the warmth that lies on the landscape has something of that brooding heat of a hen on her eggs, the same generative heat that is mentioned in the first chapter of Genesis, where it is said that the Spirit of God hovered above the water in the day of creation.

Power of A Voice

From a book of souvenirs compiled by a Russian essayist, Vladimir Posse, we extract the following letter which the author received from Maxim Gorki thirty-five years ago. Gorki, who was still a vagabond then, had met another vagabond by the name of Fydor Challiapin. "I have heard Challiapin," he writes. "He is a big monster gifted with a diabolic power, with which he is capable of dominating the crowd. He is very intelligent by nature, but for the moment, it seems to me his political point of view is that of a child, although for a singer it is intellectually overdeveloped. What a Mephisto he will make! His concerts are miraculous. He sang fifteen pieces the other night. There was a thunderous applause. You know I detest the opera and understand nothing of music. Even Challiapin cannot change that, but I will go and hear him sing, even if I have to wait an entire evening, that prayer: 'Lord, have mercy upon us!' I assure you," Gorki goes on, "he sings that prayer in such a manner that the Lord, if He exists, will surely hear them, and then He will do one of two things: He will have mercy upon us or He will reduce the world into ashes. It all depends on what Challiapin wants to put into those words."

The Household Linens

SYSTEMATIC housewives have the custom of replenishing their stock of household linens regularly. Some do this in the spring and fall by purchasing towels, bed linen and table linen in small quantities so the supply never runs so low that it causes inconvenience.

There seems to be a marked preference for the white sheets with colored borders. Many people do not take kindly to the colored sheets so they use the all white under sheet and the top sheet has a dainty hem in one of the pastel shades and many of these are now embroidered with white polka dots.

A housewife may prefer white bed linen but when it comes to the kitchen there must be color, so this spring towelings are gay with color. Even the glass towels which have always been in modest crossbar effects now come in bold four-inch-wide vertical stripes and large broken plaids, and the well-known red and blues are now superseded by orange, gold, greens, &c., in two-tone effects.

And the dish cloths now are two-toned such as green and white, maize and white, &c. If you are considering kitchen or bath room towels, dish or face cloths in anticipation of the showers that will precede the coming Easter weddings, buy them in the gay colors.

A Refrigerator Hint

IF you are spending money for ice in your refrigerator you should receive the utmost value in this. Many housewives do not get this because they check the cooling process of the ice by keeping foods in the ice compartment. This section of the refrigerator is intended for ice alone. No food should be kept there excepting the baby's and children's milk.

Another mistake often made by housekeepers is wrapping the ice in newspaper or covering it with crash. It does lower the ice bill, but it also lowers the cooling capacity of the ice and the food compartment will not reach the low temperature necessary to perfect refrigerator service.

Capes in Variety Arrive

SIMULTANEOUSLY with the introduction of the cape by the couture in Paris, smart metropolitan shops are displaying numerous capes for both day and evening.

Blond fox borders a belted cape in beige colored suede finished fabric. The worsted suit wears a short shoulder cape. And the frock of printed silk for mild weather is given a new air when completed by a separate tie-on cape to match. This latter has great chic when the print is a small floral or a pin dot.

The cape theme flourishes for evening dress, playing a seductive role with the lace or the printed chiffon frock. Separate and distinctive capes take the place of the wrap with sleeves. A lovely spring cape of pink taffeta is lined with baby blue.

Braid Bags Are New

MANY commonplace materials have been resorted to in the development of novel handbags. Soutache braid that seems to have no place in trimming costumes, does make charming bags of the envelope style. One and two tones are used, the braid sewed together in straight lines or interesting designs and the surface either left natural or lacquered. Some of the best looking bags for use with tweeds are those of soutache braid, particularly attractive in deep rich browns.

Spring Pumps

The spring pump of patent leather looks a little different from its predecessors in that it is adorned with a flat self bow fairly large in size.

DOING IT RIGHT

AS LONG as New York has the biggest bank in the world it may as well advertise the fact in real Ringling Brothers style:

Announcement Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary ! ! !

Coming ! Coming ! Coming !

Early Next Month

Stupendous resources of more than $5,000,000,000.

Gigantic assets of $4,125,000,000.

Mastodonic undivided profits.

Save your money for the BIG BANK and deposit then!

The BIGGEST BANK on EARTH is a magnificent compendium of years of scientific research, indefatigable investigation and marvelous merging from all corners of the earth. In opening our revolving doors to the public, we represent a combination of——

The Pork and Bean Exchange National Bank.

The Aaron Burr Safe Deposit and Trust Company.

The Merchants and Cowboys Bank.

The Metals and Timber Security and Trust Company.

The International Fidelity Loan and Bank.

The Farmers and Bootleggers Savings Deposit Company.

The Fifteenth National Bank.

The Pacific-American and County-City Trust Company.

And 418 other amalgamated institutions too numerous to mention and too majestic for the mind to conceive.

SPECIAL NOTICE ! We will pay $10,000.00 in cash to charity for proof that this dinosauric institution is not positively, absolutely and unequivocally the Biggest Bank on Earth.

Watch for free street parade the day of our opening !

It is impossible for the brain to grasp the gargantuan size of this Biggest Bank on Earth. Think of it! One hundred and forty members on our Board of Directors ! Meeting in their cutaway coats, our Board is bigger than Primrose's and Dockstader's minstrels combined. It requires seventeen tambourines to contain just the $20 gold pieces for directors' fees.

Five quarries in Vermont were blasted and made barren to provide marble for our paying tellers' counters alone. We have more receiving tellers' cages than Ringling's and Forepaugh's menageries added together.

See our Glittering Galaxy of Gallant Vice Presidents. The most revolutionary round-up of executive talent on the face of the earth—bar none. More than 6,059,000 cubic feet of mahogany desks are required for our Vice Presidents just to file their memos in. Nothing like it anywhere!

Seventy-four revolving doors admit to our main lobby. We maintain a special 40,000-gallon vat for filling our inkwells. And the adding machines in our overdraft department consume thirty-nine barrels of lubricating oil daily.

In our huge steel and concrete vaults we could put the Leviathan on the top shelf and still have room for Liney ferries and private yachts. Manhole covers were used for screws in the door of our main vault.

When you are opening a checking account, don't forget the Biggest Bank on Earth receives its elastic bands in carload lots. Our branch banks are everywhere, anywhere ! ! ! If there isn't one on your street corner, notify our complaint department and we will open one at once.

THE BIGGEST BANK ON EARTH ! ! !

Opening soon. Watch billboards and newspapers for exact date

Save your money till we open our doors.

On the Care of the Broom

TO GET good service out of a broom it must be handled with care. It is not economy to use the same broom for all sweeping. When you buy a new broom use this for inside sweeping and relegate the other to porch and walk service. This may also do for the garage and the old broom can be used for scrubbing purposes.

While sweeping, the broom should be continuously turned from one side to the other to keep it even. If this is not done the broom will become shorter on one side than on the other and will not sweep clean. In that case the good service of the broom may be prolonged by dipping it in hot water for a few minutes then trimming it evenly with the shears.

Before using a new broom it should be soaked in a strong solution of salt and hot water and well dried before using. A broom will last longer if given an occasional soaking in lukewarm water containing ammonia—four tablespoonfuls ammonia to two quarts of water. Allow the straws to stand in this one-half hour, then rinse well and hang in a cool place to dry.

When not in use do not stand the broom on the floor either with the straws up or down. Screw a hook in the top of the handle. This will be more convenient for hanging than a cord and the hook may be of service in lowering a window or getting articles from high shelves.

With this care a broom will give satisfactory service for years provided you have bought a good broom and, by the way, it is not economy to buy a cheap broom.

The Farmer's Advice

By Alfalfa Smith

HAVE you noticed how the mind accepts an idea and then watch that idea work out?

Lord Craven, who lived in London when the great plague raged, made preparations to avoid the danger when it became epidemic. His coach and six were brought to the door and his baggage was being made ready for the journey when he heard a Negro, serving as his postilion, say to another servant:

"I suppose by my Lord's quitting London to avoid the plague, that his God lives i the country and not in town."

The speech struck Lord Craven very sensibly and he argued: "My God lives everywhere and can preserve me in town as well as in the country. I'll even stay where I am."

He remained in London and was remarkably useful among his sick neighbors and escaped the infection.

"Pony! I haven't any pony."

"Yes, you have, Dad, and I want to ride it. Where do you keep it?"

"But, I tell you, I haven't any pony."

"You have lots of ponies. Can't I have one?"

"You must be crazy. I haven't any pony."

"Uncle Bob said you had lots of ponies."

"Uncle Bob said I had lots of ponies! What on earth are you talking about?"

"Well, Uncle Bob told Ma you'd have more money at the end of the week if you didn't play the ponies so often. Why can't I have a pony?"

"Oh, go to bed."

U. S., Japanese, British Seen In Navy Pact

LONDON April 1.—UP—A naval limitation agreement among the United States Great Britain and Japan became virtually certain today and there was renewed hope for a five-power treaty.

Using medical terms to describe the conference, the British spokesman said late in the day:

"The patient is better but cannot be considered out of danger until it is out of bed."

He indicated it was the general opinion that Japan's reply to America's naval proposals, received from Tokio today, would at least provide the basis for a three power treaty, and he added that Britain and France were still negotiating to assure French security, reduce French tonnage demands and make a five-way treaty possible.

There were reports that Foreign Secretary Arthur Henderson had submitted a new security formula to French Foreign Minister Aristide Briand and that the latter had relayed it to Paris for approval. Both the British and the French intimated these reports were correct.

Henderson talked with Foreign Minister Dino Grandi of Italy, and later it was reported Grandi was told the British were most hopeful that France could accept the new formula.

"Things have undoubtedly taken a distinctl yoptimistic turn," an Italian sources told the United Press. "However, all depends on France's reply to Briand's query."

LENORE ULRIC MAKES HIT IN TALKIE HERE

Lenore Ulric, talented star of "South Sea Rose," Fox Movietone film which closes at the Fox-California theater tonight, adhered to her pet obsession in her new role.

Miss Ulric makes no secret about her dislike for parts in which she is burdened with cumbersome dress. She recognizes that in this respect she shatters man's belief that women are happiest when dressed their best.

Throughout her long and brilliant career, Miss Ulric has escaped the torture of too many clothes. Her "Kiki" was a French ragamuffin; her "Tiger Rose" a scantily clad French-Canadian lass and her "Lulu Belle" a sparsely covered brown-skinned vamp.

"South Sea Rose" gives her almost complete freedom from wardrobe. A seaweed costume, a sailor's suit and negligee provide the abbreviated costumes in her role of the French girl in the South Seas. Well-known players in the cast include Charles Eickford, Kenneth MacKenna, Farrell Macdonald, Elizabeth Patterson, Daphne Pollard, Tom Patricola, Ilka Chase, Roscoe Ates and Charlotte Walker.

A talking comedy "End of The World" is also on the bill.

All States Now Collect Gas Tax

All states and the District of Columbia now collect a gas tax, according to the California State Automobile association. The average tax paid per gallon is 3:07 cents, and it is probable that the total gas tax collected for the United States this year will approach $400,000,000.

California, with its three cent tax, is nearly one cent lower than the average throughout the United States. This tax will enable the state to spend approximately $38,000,000 on its highways next year.

Although the average tax on gasoline throughout the country is nearly four cents, California's enormous consumption of this modern necessity is so great that adequate funds are provided for road development on the basis of three cents a gallon.

30,000 Die In Motor Accidents

Approximately 30,000 persons were killed throughout the United States in motor vehicle accidents during 1929, according to figures reported to the California State Automobile association. This is an increase of more than 7 per cent over the 1928 death toll. Traffic fatalities are increasing at a more rapid rate than the population.

Some idea of the increase in automobile accidents may be gained with comparisons with records of former years. All fatalities from this type of accident in 1918 numbered but 10,680. Five years later, in 1923, the figure had mounted to 18,416, and four years later in 1927, the total was 25,851.

Choke Useless If Engine Is Still

It is surprising how many motorists have the habit of pulling out the choke and closing it again before the starter is in operation, remarks L. G. Evans, general service manager for the National Automobile club. The action of the choke is entirely dependent upon the suction created by the engine and will not perform unless the engine is being turned over.

2851 COUNTY VETS SAVE ON TAXES

SACRAMENTO, April 1.—UP—Contra Costa county had 2851 war veterans relieved of taxes on property worth $1,564,360 in 1929, according to figures compiled by the state board of equalization.

In the state as a whole, 168,080 veterans were exempted from taxation on property which they owned valued at $102,223,952.

These exemptions are allowed under a constitutional amendment adopted in 1911. It provides that veterans who saw actual service during time of war, who do not own property of the value of $5000 or more, and whose wives do not own that much property, are to be exempt from taxes on their holdings to the amount of $1000.

"Veterans as a class are apparently becoming more prosperous," said Dixell L. Pierce, secretary of the board.

"This is indicated by the fact that the number allowed exemption has not grown as rapidly as the value of the property exempted. In 1929 the veterans listed for exemption marked an increase of but 5.86 percent. In the same year the valuation of exempt property was found to have increased by 7.61 percent over 1928."

Los Angeles county led the list of exempt veterans with 63,558 owning property valued at $39,649,205. Little Alpine county, far up in the Sierra Nevada mountains was last on the list, with only six veterans who together owned $1,830 worth of property.

"This is the time now for veterans to get their exemptions if they are entitled to such," Pierce explained.

"Between the first Monday in March and the first Monday in July of each year veterans should apply to their county assessors, stating their claim.

"If claims are not filed within that period exemption is deemed waived, according to the law."

Army Aviators End First Day Of 'War Game'

SACRAMENTO, April 1.—(U.P.)—Pilots will continue to familiarize themselves with the country in the Sacramento and Northern San Joaquin valleys tomorrow, when the second day of the air corps field exercises begin.

Planes will leave headquarters at Mather Field at 8:30 in the morning and again at 1:30 in the afternoon. Territory to be coverad includes regions surrounding Mt. Diablo, Stockton, and Lower Sierra Nevada mountains from Navada City to Jackson and the west of the Sacramento valley.

The mimic warfare, being simulated by the air corps, will tomorrow feature the "hedge hopping" expeditions used in ordinary warfare to "strafe" enemy ground positions. This consists of flying from 25 to 50 feet above the ground in attack formation.

High overhead other planes will guard the attack group as the uncover imaginary enemies on the ground.

The first day of the three weeks maneuvers here, were today devoted to liesurely conducted flights with pilots from all over the United States becoming acquainted with the Northern California country. More than twenty-five thousand miles were flown by the army men today in their "get acquainted" tour of this portion of the state.

Operations were restricted somewhat, due to failure of the first squadron composed of 27 planes to arrive from Selfridge field, Mount C Mich. The group was forced to land at Salt Lake Ciy where they will spend the night arriving here tomorrow afternoon.

More than 100 planes are already at Maather Field.

The place is taking on an activity unknown since the army used it as a training school for aviators in 1918, during the World War.

All day automobiles brought spectators to watch the event. An audience of 5,000 persons watched the flyers arrive and depart during the afternoon.

Rites Pending For A. Johanson

Funeral services for A. A. Johanson, 45, of 342 Fresno street, Richmond Annex, are pending in the hands of Wilson and Kratzer funeral parlors.

Johanson died at his home yesterday morning from a heart attack. He was a native of Russia and has lived here the last six years. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Anna Johanson, a son Richard of Richmond, and a step son, Milton Cohn of San Francisco.

Tape Disconnected Ends Of Wires

Taping the end of any disconnected unit of the electrical system is one more assurance that it will not come into contact with any other metal part with possible destruction of the battery and generator, states L. G. Evans, general service manager for the National Automobile club.

POWELL STARS IN STORY OF GAMBLER

What it means to sit in on a poker game when the turn of the next card may mean the ruin of two lives is clearly portrayed in an emotion-packed scene of "Street of Chance," William Powell's first starring picture, which comes to the Fox-California theater beginning tomorrow.

In this amazing picture of big time gamblers of New York, Powell is forced, against his will, and against his promise to his beautiful wife—played by Kay Francis—to take part in a secret poker session where stakes of hundreds of thousands of dollars are on the table.

Playing across the table from him is his young brother (Regis Toomey), who has the gambling fever and who is cleaning up, with the luck of a beginner, in the play against Powell and two other big time card sharps.

The last hand is dealt and the two brothers battle it out, finally betting each his whole stack. Powell has resolved to break his brother, to cure him of the gambling fever. Yet he knows that his brother has him licked on this one big hand, the last hand, the one that will decide everything.

Storms of emotion surge in the hearts of the two brothers, yet their practiced faces do not change—no indication of their feelings can be disclosed. Toomey has shown his hand—now Powell must show his—he turns over the last card, and—

But one must see and hear this great picture to thrill to the full emotional tension of that great climatic scene. It is Powell at his sensational best.

On the same bill is a talking comedy, "Brown Gravy."

German Cabinet Nearing Crisis

BERLIN, April 1.—UP—The next 24 hours doubtless will decide whether the new German cabinet headed by Chancellor Heinrich Bruening will be permitted to govern with the co-operation of the Reichstag or whether that legislative body must be dissolved, leaving Bruening a virtual dictator pending elections.

Bruening read his declaration of policy to the Reichstag today and repeatedly threatened to dissolve parliament if obstructed. The Socialists, dropped from cabinet participation, listened in grim silence while the Communists frequently interrupted with shouts of "starvation cabinet" and "hunger chancellor."

The Nationalists, who must support the government if it is to command a majority, betrayed few signs of opposition. The Communists immediately submitted a misconfidence motion. The Socialists are expected to offer a similar motion for a vote tomorrow.

PLANE SETS NEW SPEED RECORD

VAN NUYS, April 1.—Here at the Metropolitan airport where a world's record for speed with a loaded plane was broken several days ago by a Bach trimotored cabin ship fueled with Richmond gasoline and lubricated with Richlube oil, thousands have visited within the last week to view the record making plane. For this is the powerful and fast product of America's Pacific west which, piloted by Pat Fleming, snatched an international record for 100 kilometers away from France on the morning of March 26.

In addition to the big white Bach bird being on display, Pilot Fleming is also in the spotlight. Every visitor wants to see and to congratulate this lad who set the new record. But Pat Fleming is a modest creature, it is agreed, and refuses personal credit, preferring to pass it to his plane and the fuel and oil he used.

"I want to say," Pat tells visitors, "that I was pretty sure this stock Bach ship was the fastest stock model ship in America and that it could, even with the heavy load, beat the French record. But to make certain of success, we picked out the best possible gasoline, oil and rocker arm grease—all Richfield Oil company products. The result speaks for itself. The dependability of the grease and oil, together with the extra measure of speed in Richfield, enabled me to average 142.66 miles per hour, nearly four miles an hour faster than the French record."

The record was broken in but a single attempt last Wednesday over a tringular closed course which had never been tried before with the loaded plane. The ship, under Federation Aeronautique Internationale sanction and supervision, carried more than two tons of sands bags as dead weight, thus conforming to the payload provision for the 100 kilometer distance.

The ship was named the Q. E. D. —freely translated as "proved"—and all agreed that the record-breaking flight "proved" both the qualities of the plane and of the Richfield-Richlube combination.

Setting New Records

A NEW record was set by the trimotored Bach cabin plane, fueled with Richfield gas and oil, when the plane carrying two tons of dead weight, made an average speed of 142.66 miles an hour. Top photo shows plane with Dudley Steele, head of the Richfield air department and Pat Fleming, the pilot. Middle photo shows (left to right) Glenn Odekirk, observer; Pat Fleming, pilot and Joe Nikrent, official timer, watching Steele and Gerald Ryder weight the two tons of sand. Below is closeup of Pat Fleming, left and Nikrent.

SAFETY GROUP WARNS LAX MOTORISTS

Cutting corners is a motorist's custom that will be discouraged in Oakland by the Eastbay Safety council and throughout the state by the California committee on Public Safety during the month of April, according to announcement yesterday by Ramsey Probasco, president of the local organization.

This is one of the regular series of monthly events by both groups designed to educate motorists and work toward reduction of the death and accident toll here and elsewhere.

The committee activities during the coming month, as part of its all-year educational and enforcement program for reduction of the traffic accident toll, will be centered on observance of the law governing the overtaking of other vehicles. For the first ten days of the month, motorists throughout the state will be educated, through the press, radio stations, service clubs and theaters, to the hazards of cutting in and law violations when passing.

The California Highway Patrol and police departments of major cities, who are cooperating in the safety campaign, will enforce strictly the state law governing this type of violation beginning the tenth of the month. At the same time, state traffic officers have been instructed by superintendent Eugene W. Biscailuz of the California Highway Patrol to begin a brake testing campaign. After a three weeks courtesy period during which motorists with defective brakes will be warned, issuance of citations will begin.

Committee Slogan

"Cutting In Is A Driving Sin!" will be the slogan of the month during the California committee on Public Safety campaign. Cooperating with the committee, the legal department of the California State Automobile association, for the benefit of motorists, summarizes the law in this respect as follows:

(a) Any vehicle overtaking another vehicle proceeding in the same direction shall pass at least two feet to the left thereof, and shall not again be driven to the right side of the highway until reasonably clear of such overtaken vehicle.

(b) The driver of an overtaking motor vehicle outside of a business or residence district shall give audible warning wiith his bell, gong, or other warning device before passing or attempting to pass a vehicle proceeding in the same direction.

(c) The driver of any vehicle shall not drive the same so as to pass or overtake any other vehicle going in the same direction at any intersection of public highways unless directed to do so by a traffic officer or police officer nor upon a curve where the driver's view along the highway is obstructed within a distance of one hundred and fifty feet.

RICHMOND HIGH NINE WINS FIRST CONTEST OF LEAGUE

The Richmond union high school varsity nine won its first ball game of the season yesterday when it took the Alameda high school outfit into camp with a score of 6 to 4 in a hectic contest on the First street diamond.

Yesterday's game was the first contest of the present Alameda County Athletic league season in which the well-known Alameda squad has been defeated. However, the Alamedans hardly showed their league-leading qualities in yesterday's battle. The Richmondites played a better brand of baseball yesterday than they have played so far this year.

The Alamedans started out by collecting a run in the first inning. However, the Richmond boys retaliated in the second canto to garner five counters. Alameda gained one more run in the fourth. In the sixth period, a group of errors on the part of the local infielders presented the visitors with two more counters, making t he score 5 to 4. Richmond made its position more secure by collecting its sixth counter in the ninth inning.

Babich On Mound

Babich pitched the entire game for Richmond, allowing five hits, fanning 11, and walking six. Goddard started twirling for the Alameda team, but was batted off the mound in the second inning. He was replaced by Worster, who fanned eight Richmond sluggers, allowed three hits, and walked four men. Goddard allowed three hits, fanned none, and walked three men. Peacock, Alameda's star pitcher, was unable to twirl because of a sprained wrist.

John Babich gained the only homer of yesterday's contest. Doubles were collected by Rollino Peacock and Mizzoli.

A. Martin, organizer of the project. The announcement followed reports from Seattle that the Pacific Coast Hocky league will break up after the play-off series between Vancouver and Portland. Martin said he had an agreement to have the arena ready for the first hockey game of the 1930-31 series and that it will be the home of the Portland Buckaroos. He also is backing a new arena hat will be constructed in Tacoma this year.

The structure will be built on East Side property acquired several years ago by Ralph Lloyd, Los Angeles capitalist. JONES WINS IN SOUTHERN MATCH

AUGUSTA, Ga. April 1—(UP)—What it takes to win golf tournaments was displayed with every championship flourish here today by Bobby Jones as he swept thru the first annual $5,000 southeastern tourney with the staggering competitive score of 72-72-69-71—284.

He was strokes and strokes better than the Nation's best shots and as a matter of facts finished 13 strokes ahead of his nearest threat, Horton Smith, Evanston, N. Y., pro., who captured the first money prize of $1,000 with 73-73-75-71—292.

It was possibly the most amazing single-handed rout of a brilliant tournament field ever witnessed on an American course. Birdies alighted on the National Open Champion's card with regularity and one eagle came to roost.

Plenty Trouble

Then, to show that after all he was human, the Atlanta barrister ran into all kinds of trouble on his last three holes, blowing a rare opportunity to establish a new course record. He had only to shoot 3-5-4 for a 66, five under par, but he took 6-5-6 for "perfect" figures.

Strung out behind Smith was a badly whipped professional delegation which perhaps had seen too much golf in recent weeks, while Bobby divided his time between golf and law. The leaders:

Ed Dudley, Wilmington, Del., 298 (including a 68 which tied the course record); Joe Turnesa, Elmsford, N. Y., and Whiffy Cox, Brooklyn, 299; Johnny Farrell, Quaker Ridge, N. J., and Tom Kerrigan, Siwanoy, N. Y., 300; Frank Walsa, Chicago, 301; Harry Cooper, Los Angeles, 302, Tony Manero, Elmsford, N. Y., 304; Billie Burkey, Greenwich, Conn., 305; Jack Forrester, Hackensack, N. J., 306; H. A. Pipcard, Charleston, S. C., 307; Lee Fowler, Atlanta Amateur, 308 Gene Sarazen, Fresh Madows, L. I., 311;; Al Espinosa, Chicago, and David Ogilvie, Augusta, 312; Bobby Cruishank was in a three-way tie at 313.

Beats Smith

Jones completely avenged his one stroke defeat at the hands of Horton Smith at the Savannan Tourney in February, and sent Horton away from here at noon by airplane for Washington and Boston, admittedly beaten. However, Smith will learn tonight that his erratic 297 after all was good enough to fatten his bank roll by $1,000.

Bobby's play today was featured first by his fint morning round of 69, then his course-burning play at start of the afternoon round, followed by his "collapse" which matter little.

Jones' Cards:

Baseball Teams Play Tie Contest

The Point Richmond ball team and the McRacken nine played to a 4 to 4 tie recently at First street. Giovennetti held the mound for the Point squad, striking out eight men. Cooper of McRacken's outfit struck out 12 men, and allowed five hits.

U. C. TRACKMEN TO GO NORTH TONIGHT

BERKELEY, April 1.—Twenty-two track and field athletes, three managers, Coach Walter Christie and Charles Voltz, trainer, will leave the University of California Wednesday night on the "Cascade" for Seattle to meet the University of Washington team on their indoor track Saturday evening. They will arrive Thursday evening at 9:45 o clock stopping at the Olympia hotel.

The fact that his squad is closely limited has given Coach Christie furiously to think, and to date he has been unable to determine just who will make the trip north. Point winners were so far and few between against the Trojans that they stand out in bold relief above the rest of the squad and hence will probably be automatically booked for the train ride. But how to select the rest of the squad without leaving possible dark horses at home is the question about which Christie's problem revolves.

The pole vault results were the surprise of last week's debacle, with Bil' Koblick and Everett Scrivner both shut out in favor of a limber, lanky vaulter named Geo. Pool who wasn't figured at all but who took a third place at 13 feet. Neither of the other two Bears was cleared much better than 12 feet six inches. Pool may have been jumping 'way over his head, figuratively as well as literal'y ,and may not repeat again this season.

Capt. Al Pogolotti's time in the hurdles was a rift in the gloom for Bear followers. "Pogy" did the sticks in 14:7, which is probably the best time of the season anywhere in the country—one-tenth of a second slower than the record. In the 'ows he was hot on the heels of Carls of the Trojans, who was clocked at 23:9.

Mossman in the mile, Henderson in the two mile, Zelman in the 880 Sparks in the sprints, DeBerry in the weight, Churchill and Curtis in the javelin, Bias in the broad jump and Rice in the high jump—these are the chief Bear prospects as revealed by Saturday's meet.

Scots Defeated By English In Barnyard Golf

Proud, haughty and arrogant, the Scotch horseshoe team from the St. Andrew's society of Richmond invaded the stronghold of the Gladstone lodge, Sons of St. George last night.

A few hours later, unheralded and unsung, the Scotch horseshoe team shuffled disconsolately homeward, smarting under a severe beating administered by the English throwers.

The honors are now even so far as the impromptu games have gone as the St. Andrew's team defeated the Gladstone pitchers last week at the Scotch meeting.

The victorious English team is composed of Harry Hayes, William Fewins, Joe Yates and Herb Caswell. Members of the Scotch team who went down to ignominous defeat last night were George Smith, George Black, James Stuart and William Wallace.

The scores were 21 to 8 and 21 to 10, with the Eng'ish on the leavy end in both scores.

Following the matches, committees were appointed from both lodges to investigate and form a horseshoe league. A cup has been donated to Gladstone lodge by Maj. James McLaren of Albany, to be awarded the victorious team in a series of contests between the English and Scotch lodges.

A short business meeting of Gladstone lodge preceded the tournament last night. William Fewins presided in the absence of Ed Valler, who is sick.

The high senior cagers of the Boys' Hi-Y conquered the Hi-Y low seniors 23 to 13 last night in the Hi-Y basketball tournament.

The high seniors held the upper hand during the greater part of the contest, while the losers were unable to break through their opponents' strong defense. The high seniors will clash with the junior class next week to decide the championship of the three-game interclass league.

The regular weekly meeting of the club was held previous to last night's game. A discussion of the topic "Prejudice" was conducted by Woodrow Snodgrass, chairman of the world brotherhood committee of the club.

Plans were also made for a banquet next Tuesday, at which the Berkeley Boys' Hi-Y members will be guests of the local Hi-Y club.

B TRACK TEAM IN MEET TODAY

Richmond Union high school will enter its B track team in the first Alameda County Athletic league B track meet of the season today on the Piedmont high school athletic field. The meet will end tomorrow afternoon.

In spite of their inexperience, the Richmond B's are expected to carry off at least several places; Snodgrass, Maloney, Garside, Armstrong and George Miller are expected to figure prominently for Richmond in tonight's meet.

Spit is a horrid word, but it is worse on the end of your cigar

...the war against Spitting is a crusade of decency... join it. Smoke CERTIFIED CREMO!

"It serves him right," we say when the filthy spitter is caught in the act. For spitting is an outrage against public decency. And yet, thousands continue to smoke cigars rolled by dirty, yellowed fingers that tip the ends in spit! For more than half of all cigars made in this country are still made by hand, and therefore subject to the risk of spit!

Certified Cremo protects you against this abomination! Every tobacco leaf entering the clean, sunny Certified Cremo factories is scientifically treated by methods developed by the United States Government during the war. And its purity is safeguarded along every step of the way by amazing inventions that foil, wrap and tip the cigars without the possibility of spit!

Try a Certified Cremo—see how wonderfully good it is! Made of the choicest, tenderest leaves that the crop affords, we claim Certified Cremo's quality is tastier than that of any other cigar. Don't let its 5c price stand in your way. Your physician has in mind a cigar like Certified Cremo when he recommends a mild smoke in place of heavy brands.

Crush-proof...immaculate...foil-wrapped ...Certified Cremo is the kind of cigar the late Vice-President Marshall undoubtedly was thinking of when he said: "What this country needs is a good 5c cigar!"

School nurse says all girls should know this

TALKING to a roomful of high school girls on personal hygiene, an experienced district nurse said: "One of the basic rules of health for girls is to keep the system functioning naturally at all times. Normal exercise and diet habits should be encouraged. But when necessary there's no harm in taking nujol, since it works mechanically and can't disturb the normal functions of any organ of the body. Particularly with girls, there are times when nujol should always be taken. Take a spoonful every night for a few days. It's a thoroughly safe and harmless method. It won't cause distress or gas pains or griping."

Nujol is different from any other substance. It contains no drugs or medicine. It can be taken safely no matter how you are feeling because it is so pure and harmless, and works so easily. Every woman should keep a bottle on hand. Every druggist has this remarkable substance. Get the genuine.

SYNOPSIS

On reaching the white settlement in New Guinea, David Wade goes on a spree, is robbed, and rescued by Stella Blackney, daughter of the dipsomanic hotel proprietress. Stella tells him the store-keeper, O'Shane, robbed him, but denies it in O'Shane's presence. Later she tells Wade that she is married to O'Shane, who only waits to claim his marital rights until her mother dies—that was their agreement. She asks Wade to take her away, to some island in the South Seas where they can trade in copra and fish for pearls. Her mother drinks herself into delirium tremens.

The doctor glanced at the woman, and, in answer to a question from Wade as to what was wrong with her, explained that she was dying of alcoholic excess, that she was quite unconscious, and that she imagined Death was attacking her in physical, or monstrous form, and that she was fighting it, staving it off, had grasped it by the throat, even as it had grasped her by the throat—the Thing of a delirium translated into a physical fact.

And there they waited—and a terrible waiting it was, for presently the woman's eyes began a wild rolling and her voice came again. It was not a pleasing voice. It had a tremendous incisiveness. It was unnaturally high-pitched and harsh.

Wade felt that soon he would scream; and he knew the doctor

"No! No! I'll fight! Keep away!"

felt the same. But O'Shane appeared quite unaffected; from his position on the floor he watched with eyes that had in them more than a little of gloating; once, indeed, he laughed, as though in this terrible passing of his wife's mother there was something humorous; once there came from him a drunken muttering of astonishment that the woman in dying should take so long.

Neither Wade nor the doctor heeded him. The figure on the bed held the attention to the exclusion of all else.

After a time she lay back and her eyes closed, and it seemed the end would come in the quietude of sleep. The doctor bent over her puffed, flushed face, a hand extended to touch her brow.

But he did not touch her, for suddenly she jerked herself again upright; and the doctor scarcely avoided the clutching of her finger.

"No—no! I'll fight! Fight! Keep away! Those eyes—they're burning me—burning! Away, I say! All right, then! I'll give you—all—the fight—you want! But them eyes! Burning—burning——"

"I'll have to get out!" said Wade. "I—I can't stand it."

He stepped to the door, but, despite himself, halted and turned as the voice from the bed rose to a shrill crescendo:

"Beat you! Beat you!"

The wetness about her mouth had grown, and the veins of her forehead were like to burst. Her voice became shriller:

"You're done, I guess! Done! Kate Blackney—wins!"

Her voice ceased, her hands lost their rigid curving and dropped, and for a moment she sat completely still. Then slowly, like something infinitely tired and glad to rest, she sagged back, right back; and the remainder of the mosquito-net fell from its fastenings and covered her like a pall.

O'Shane staggered to his feet and remarked it was time he had a drink. Neither of the whites answered him; but the spell was broken, and, anxious to get outside, into the open, beneath the stars, anywhere away from that room and its associations, Wade made a way past the clustered natives, descended the veranda steps into the darkness of the palm-shadows, and strode off along the beach. He forgot it was long past time for the evening meal, forgot everything save the scene he had just witnessed.

And then he met Stella. Out of breath and excited, she was hurrying towards the hotel. She peered into his face and then clutched his arm.

"It's you, David? I've got it! I told you I would!" She held up a wallet. "It's all here, I think, though I didn't stop to count it."

"Count what?"

"Why the money—"

"Oh, yes; I remember."

Too intent on her story to note his strangeness of manner, she explained that when O'Shane came to the hotel and began drinking, she took the opportunity to go to his store and make a search, a search which involved much examining of various likely and unlikely places, and resulted in discovery of the actual spot only by lucky accident. At the end she thrust the wallet into his hands, and with an easy laugh asked, did he not think she was clever.

Casting about in his mind for convenient means of breaking the news of her mother's death, Wade made no answer. He was glad she had not been present.

She linked her arm in his. "Did the servants look after you all right at supper? I've been longer than I expected——"

"One moment," Wade said slowly. "Since you've been away—I mean—I've bad news for you——"

"My mother?"

The lightness was gone from her voice.

"Don't be afraid to tell me," she added.

"Yes," he answered, but did not inform her further, for she had suddenly grown so heavy on his arm that he had to grip her about the waist.

"Don't give way," he counselled.

"Don't tell me. I think I would rather not know." Then, after a pause:

"Was he there?"

The storekeeper had sat through it all like a waiting ghoul, he told her.

She pressed closer. The contact of her body pleased him.

"It is the end of all things for me. When he sobers he will come for me."

She gripped his coat suddenly.

"David—David—take me away! I ask you again! I must get away from him! I must escape the chain! I've had more than my share of the ugly things of life. I want something of the beautiful and clean. I owe it to myself. David—David—we could be happy—you and I. I won't be a hindrance to you. Indeed I won't! I'll help you. I'll be a wonderful help. In some other of the islands, where we won't be known. David——"

She pressed in closer still, moulding the curves of her body to his, suppliant, yielding, setting him tingling at each point of contact.

"It's our chance. Things couldn't have happened better. I'll keep him well supplied with liquor. We will provision the cutter and sail away before he sobers, David," she whispered. And her soft, round arm crept up and about his neck.

Her hair was brushing his cheek—soft, smooth hair, subtly fragrant. Her face was very close; he could see the shining of her eyes. There was a seeking about her lips. With astounding force it came to him that they were desirable lips, the most desirable of all lips.

"David!" she whispered again and her seeking lips came closer. A tremble rippled through him. He felt suddenly hot, as from fever. No thought came to him that maybe she was deliberately using her femininity to tempt him.

"David dear!"

He strove to recall his belief in the sanctity of marriage, his conviction that the taking of another's wife was dishonorable, no matter what the circumstances. With a splash of orthodox morality he sought to quench the flames of passion and desire. He failed.

With a fierceness regardless of the strength of his grip, he swung his other arm about her and pressed his lips hard to hers. His voice came in a dry whisper:

"Come, Stella!"

CHAPTER IV

They accomplished their flight on the third night following Mrs. Blackney's death. Its successful accomplishment was due mainly to Stella's ingenuity. Stella gave herself to the task as never she had given herself to a task before. She developed a sense of strategy she had hardly known she possessed. In order to prevent him claiming her at once, she kept O'Shane maudlin with liquor. From one of the stores she obtained provisions and trading goods, paying for them with Wade's recovered money, and announcing casually she was sending the cutter trading, as her mother had intended to do. Discovering that the lover of Lo-oru, the youth named Manua, who was one of the cutter's crew-boys, grieved at the prospect of leaving his sweetheart behind, she made their immediate wedding possible by presenting them with the goods which were the girl's marriage-price.

YOUTHS SOUGHT IN ATTACK ATTEMPT

SAN FRANCISCO, April 1.—UP—Police today sought two youths, one believed to be employed in the shipyards at Mare Island, who last night severely beat a young San Francisco girl when she attempted to repulse their attack.

The girl, Miss Frances Williams, 26, sobbed out her story at an emergency hospital, where she was taken early today after a passing motorist brought her to the city from a deserted spot on Skyline boulevard.

She told police that after a ride, the boys stopped the machine, and one attempted to attack her. When she repulsed him, he beat her about the face and body with a crank handle, knocking out two of her front teeth and bruising her.

The girl asserted that she knew the identity of one of the boys and would swear out a warrant for his arrest.

Lieut. James C. Malloy of the crime detention details said tonight he could not locate the woman after she was released from the receiving hospital and would not issue any warrants until she was dislovered. He said she was not known at the address she gave police.

Captain Dollar Seriously Ill

SAN RAFAEL, April 1.—UP—Indications that Capt. Robert Dollar, shipping magnate known in nearly every port of the world, is recovering from an attack of acute bronchitis were noted tonight by his physician, Dr. Raphael G. Dufficy.

After visiting the patient at 6 p. m. tonight, Dr. Dufficy issued a statement that Capt. Dollar had spent a very comfortable day, his cough was better and he spent the afternoon reading personal mail.

The physician said Capt. Dollar retired at seven p. m. tonight and he would not make another call until Wednesday forenoon.

He said the shipping man's temperature had dropped to 98.8 degrees during the afternoon, his pulse remained stationary at 80 and his respiration was 24.

Dress Rehearsal For Torchbearer Play Tonight

With final rehearsals in progress and a dress rehearsal scheduled for tonight, members of the Torchbearers class of the Longfellow junior high school, are greatly enthused over the play, "Chickens" which they will present at the Roosevelt auditorium Friday night.

The production is particularly appropriate as it deals with child life in an average home. The complications which arise in an industrious family whose main interest is centered about a poultry yard, gives excellent opportunity for character studies.

The unselfishness and self sacrifice of a loving mother, the loyalty of neighbors and the gratitude of a foster son are among the commendable qualities in the story. A general spirit of co-operation and good fellowship which pervades the atmosphere of the play, makes it enjoyable for young and old.

Leading characters are portrayed by the following students: Edith Minter, Melva Williams, Carl Serard, Sherdon Hurley, Homer Anderson, Kenneth McPhee, Eva Anthes, Mary Connors, Linwood Frates and Roland Campbell.

According to Miss Kruse, the dramatic coach, the complete cast will be announced the latter part of the week.

The cars are of the latest design, and are no different from the new Pontiac models, except for very minor body changes, according to Strom.

Strom has featured for the sale four door sedans, two door sedans and coupes.

The sale will only continue for the next few days.

As the result of the price reductions, these new Pontiacs sell in Richmond for a price that is less than the cheapest car built, Strom stated.

You can use
Natural Gas
in furnaces and boilers now burning other fuels

Natural Gas costs less to use

Fire your furnace from your easy chair!

You eliminate furnace drudgery by using Natural Gas in your present furnace or boiler.

The change-over is easy and very inexpensive. We merely install the new "Conversion Burner" in the firebox.

You have instant heat any time, simply by moving a tiny lever on a Thermostat which is placed in your living room. By setting the lever at 70, your home stays at 70 degrees. You stop the "Conversion Burner" by moving the lever to the extreme left.

Healthful and Safe

When you install the "Conversion Burner," you substitute clean Natural Gas for your present fuel. The Natural Gas burns inside the steel firebox. All products of combustion go outdoors through a chimney just as the smoke does from your present fire. The pure, warm air which heats your home does not come in contact with the burning gas. It passes around the hot outsides of the steel firebox.

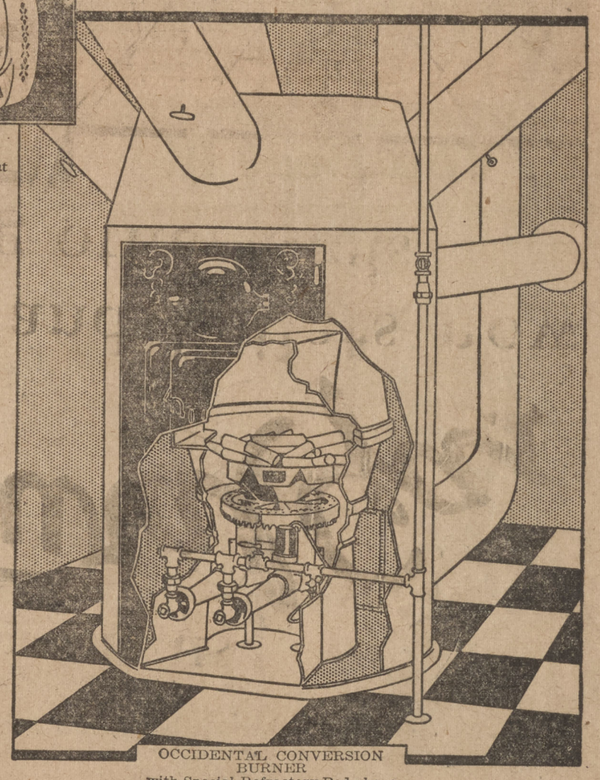
It Is Clean

With the "Conversion Burner," your curtains, your wall-paper, and your furniture retain their fresh cleanliness. Dirt and soot are unknown.

Many Satisfied Users

One hundred "Conversion Burners" were installed as a test in furnaces where Natural Gas was first turned on. A careful check was made of these burners and they were found to be operating entirely satisfactorily. The people who are using them are more than pleased with the clean, care-free heating. Especially are they pleased with the low operating cost.

The Thermostat



OCCIDENTAL CONVERSION BURNER
with Special Refractory Bed above burner for maximum efficiency.

No matter whether a householder owns his own home or is simply renting, the "Conversion Burner" can still be used to give him warm, care-free heating. Whenever desired, a "Conversion Burner" can be removed from one furnace and re-installed in another furnace at a very reasonable cost.

Heat Needed 47 Days in June and July

Even though Summer is ahead of us, you'll need the "Conversion Burner."

Say Goodbye to this forever!

According to the "United States Weather Bureau," there were 342 days in San Francisco and 333 days in Oakland during the year of 1928 when the mean daily temperature fell below 65 degrees. There were 47 days in San Francisco during June and July when heat was needed—due to foggy conditions around the Bay region.

We Inspect Your Heating Plant

Before the Pacific Gas and Electric Company installs a "Conversion Burner" in your furnace or boiler, we test and make a very careful inspection of your heating plant.

For a demonstration of the "Conversion Burner," call at our office, or telephone and a representative will give you full details.
